Introduction

Cancer can have an impact on all aspects of your life, including your finances. This brochure is meant as a guide to help you and your family become familiar with public and private financial assistance programs available in BC. Knowing what and when programs are available may help you manage the added costs that can be associated with having cancer.

In general, most financial assistance programs have eligibility requirements such as proof of low income and/or confirmation of medical status.

If you need to talk to a counsellor about any emotional or practical concerns please contact your cancer centre’s Patient & Family Counselling Services to make an appointment.

First Steps:

✓ If you are not registered for Fair Pharmacare, sign up right away.

✓ If you are currently receiving any government financial assistance, talk with these agencies as soon as possible you may be eligible for added benefits.

✓ If you are a First Nations person with registered status and living on a reserve call your band office and/or First Nations Health Authority.
Financial Assistance if You Need to Stop Working

If you are unable to work due to cancer and/or treatment side effects, you may require a private or government program to help replace some or all of your earnings for a short while or over the longer term.

Private Benefits

Extended Medical Benefits:
Some people have extended benefits through work. Your plan may allow for sick days, short-term disability and long-term disability. Check with your Human Services representative, benefit plan administrator or plan website.

Life & Critical Illness Insurance:
You may have a life or critical illness insurance policy. Some plans allow people with a terminal disease to withdraw funds from his/her plan while still living. Think about all of the implications when withdrawing funds.

If you have a credit card or loan/mortgage, you may also have an attached insurance plan to cover your payments when you are ill.

NOTE: You may also be able to have your payments/fees stopped for a short while without it affecting your contract or plan.

Check with your plan representative regarding what is available to you.
Financial Assistance if You Need to Stop Working

Government Benefits

Employment Insurance (EI):
EI benefits may be available to you if you were working in insurable work and premiums were deducted from your wages as shown on your pay stub. For regular benefits the number of hours needed to qualify is based on the unemployment rate in your area, ranging from 420 to 700 hours accumulated within the 52-week period right before the start date of your claim, or since the start date of your last claim, whichever is shorter (this period is called the qualifying period).

In some cases, 910 hours of insurable work are required. You may need more than 910 hours to qualify if you’ve had a violation on a prior claim within the last five years.

When you have 600 hours of insurable work, and your normal weekly earnings have been reduced by more than 40% because of sickness, you may be eligible to get EI sickness benefits.

You may also qualify if you are a self-employed fisher and you have plenty of insurable earnings from self-employment in fishing during the qualifying period.

For most people, the basic rate for working out your EI entitlement is 55% of your normal insurable weekly earnings, up to a maximum amount.

As a rule there is an initial 2 week waiting period before benefits are paid.

Programs include:

- Regular Benefits - the number of weeks you can get is based on the unemployment rate in your area and the number of insurable hours you have accumulated – up to a maximum of 45 weeks. You must be ready, willing, and able to work, and you must be actively seeking work.
Financial Assistance if You Need to Stop Working

- Sickness Benefits - you are eligible for a maximum of 15 weeks of benefits if you are not able to work because of sickness, injury or quarantine but would be ready to work if not for medical reasons. You need to get a medical certificate or note signed by your doctor or approved medical expert.

- Compassionate Care Benefits (CCB) - benefits allow those people who meet eligibility measures to give care or support to someone who is gravely ill and who has a significant risk of death within 26 weeks (6 months). The leave can be shared at any time during the 26-week period, either at the same time or at other times, but each must apply one at a time, and be eligible for these benefits (example: 2 people using 3 weeks each, with only the first person to claim CCB benefits serving the 2 week waiting period). If you plan to share this benefit you should agree on the number of weeks that each of you will take before you apply for benefits.

For more information go to: Service Canada www.servicecanada.gc.ca or call 1.800.206.7218

Canada Pension Plan Disability (CPPD):

Disability benefits are available for eligible contributors who are under the age of 65 and have a health issue that is both severe and prolonged. Severe means that you have a mental or physical disability that most often stops you from doing any type of gainful work. Prolonged means your disability is likely to be long-term or last forever.

CPP gives monthly benefits to dependent children of parents who are getting the CPP disability benefit. Eligible children are under the age of 18, or between 18 and 25 and going to a recognized school or college full time. If both parents are getting CPP disability benefits, their dependent children may get two children’s benefits—one for each parent.

There is an appeal process for denied applicants. You have 90 days to appeal.
There is a Terminal Illness Application which speeds up the application process for people with a terminal illness. Call Service Canada or a Patient & Family Counsellor for inquiries.

Canada Pension Plan Retirement:
Programs include:

- Early Retirement (between ages 60-64)
- Regular Retirement (age 65)
- Old Age Security (OAS) - the amount of your OAS pension will be decided by how long you have lived in Canada after the age of 18 and your income.
- Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS) - if you live in Canada and you have a low income, this monthly non-taxable benefit can be added to your OAS pension.
- Spousal Allowance - if you are 60 to 64 years of age and your spouse or common-law partner is getting the Old Age Security pension and is able to get the Guaranteed Income Supplement, you might be eligible to get this benefit.
- Allowance for the Survivor - if you are 60 to 64 years of age and you are widowed, you might be eligible to get this benefit.
