

All rights to this video and any guideline/educational material/policy or procedure contained therein, collectively the “Materials”, are reserved in favour of Provincial Health Services Authority and has been specifically developed for use by British Columbia Centre for Disease Control and Prevention Society Branch (BCCDC).

No part of the Materials may be used for commercial purposes or gain, reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means whether, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the prior written permission of BCCDC.

The Materials were developed specifically to serve support systems at BCCDC that may not exist in other clinical settings and it is not intended to prescribe a standard of care.

Nothing contained in the Materials should be construed as providing professional advice and the Materials should not be adapted for use in clinical settings due to the differences and standards of care.

Any reliance on the Materials for any purpose is at your sole risk and expense.

If professional advice is required, the services of a competent and qualified professional should be sought.

Clinical decision making in a specific context remains the responsibility of attending professionals.

Nothing contained in the Materials should in any way be construed as being either official or unofficial policy of the Provincial Health Services Authority or of BCCDC.

BC Centre for Disease Control

An agency of the Provincial Health Services Authority